Tell PG&E and Public Utilities Commission: Not to Charge Richmond!

Currently, ALL Richmond Marin Clean Energy (MCE customers) must pay an additional fee to PG&E.

A typical MCE household will pay about $70 in fees to PG&E every year.

MCE's 125,000 customers paid nearly $13,000,000 in additional fees to PG&E - last year.

This fee has a disproportionate impact on low-income households, comprising more than 10% of their electric charges.

This money could stay in MCE customer's pockets or could go toward putting more solar panels on homes and schools in Richmond.

CBE is supporting MCE customers to tell PG&E and the California Public Utilities Commission to stop charging additional fees.

WHY DO WE PAY THE ADDITIONAL CHARGE?

PG&E's Power Charge Indifference Adjustment (PCIA) fee is billed monthly and based on electricity usage, covers the cost of energy bought by PG&E before a customer enrolled in MCE program. Essentially, this charge requires that customers pay for energy that they will never use.

The PCIA fee is also applied to low or fixed-income customers, including those enrolled in the California Alternative Rates for Energy (CARE) program. PG&E is the only Investor-Owned Utility in California to impose these fees on low-income customers.

TAKE ACTION

- Request that Mayor Tom Butt and City Councilmember's work with other cities to continue to be a champion for Richmond to get rid of PG&E's fees: tom.butt@intres.com | 510-236-7435
- Contact the California Public Utilities Commissioner, Mike Florio and request action to fix the fee: mike.florio@cpuc.ca.gov | 415-703-2440

Let's work together to get rid of PG&E fees on Richmond MCE customers. We can put the money in our wallets and work to build a clean energy future!
